DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. Claims 1, 3 to 5 and 7 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Klein et al. US Pat. 6,626,473 (US Pat. for DE 19856902 submitted by applicant).

Klein discloses a vehicle door handle device comprising:

an electric part 16 having a first and second face (top and bottom, figs. 2 and 3), wherein the electric part 16 located within an internal space of the door handle to abut an inner surface of the door handle at the first face (electric part abutting 40) and to form a gap 48 between the inner surface and the second face (gap area by 27); and a first elastic member 23 mounted on the second face of the electric part 16, and is located in the gap (portion of the member) to be pressed against the inner surface of the door handle and the electric part 16.

Regarding claims 3 and 4, the handle includes a handle body 37 and a handle cover 22, wherein the body 37 having a reinforcing portion formed along the electric part (internal portion of the body 37). The reinforcing portion has a retaining groove to allow a retaining claw 43 the engage the handle body and the handle cover.

Art Unit: 2832

Regarding claim 5, the electric part including a first electric part and a second electric part (The first being the switch and the second being a device spaced apart, such as an LED, from the first connected via a wire.).

Regarding claim 7, in addition to above, Klein discloses a hinge arm 10 to be pulled (col. 2, line 23).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claim 6 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Klein (cited above).

Klein teaches the claimed invention except for the first elastic member supports the electric part on the inner surface of the door handle at the first face of the electric part. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to alter the flexible elastic member to the allow actuation from the inner side of the door handle instead from the external side, as disclosed by Klein, since such modification and use would be equivalent and also would have been within reach tone skilled in the art.

Allowable Subject Matter

5. Claim 2 is objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

Response to Arguments

6. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1-7 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.
